August 23 - Anger over health care reform continues to spread on both sides of the aisle and across the nation. Has the president lost hope for bi-partisan support? Do the Democrats plan to go it alone on reform and will a bill include a public option? Plus, the fight for Afghanistan: After eight years of war, what progress has been made against the Taliban?

August 30 - An hour-long tribute to Sen. Ted Kennedy — his life and political career. A special conversation with close friends, colleagues and family members including Sen. John Kerry, Sen. Chris Dodd, Bob Shrum and Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. A look at the Kennedy legacy and beyond with Presidential Historian Doris Kearns Goodwin.

September 6 - As President Obama tries to regain control of the health care debate and prepares to address a joint session of Congress about his plan next week, we'll get a preview of the new offensive from his Senior Adviser, David Axelrod. Then, what are the president's chances of passing health care reform and will any Republicans be on board?

September 13 - The President has made his case to Congress. What's next? We have an exclusive debate: Assistant Majority Leader Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL); Sen. John Cornyn (R-TX); Fmr. DNC Chairman Dr. Howard Dean; and Fmr. House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-GA). Plus, insights and analysis on how the Obama administration is faring with its many political challenges.

September 20 - President Barack goes one-on-one with David Gregory about passing health care reform and the current tone of the debate. Then, the Republican response with Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) and Sen. Lindsey Graham (R-SC). Plus, a political roundtable: The Washington Post's Eugene Robinson & Politico's Roger Simon.

September 27 - As the nation continues to struggle at home and abroad, the former president shares his thoughts on the major challenges posed by the economy, health care, Afghanistan and more. Gov. Paterson joins us exclusively to talk about his political future and more. Plus Republican Whip Sen. Jon Kyl (R-AZ) and Sen. Jim Webb (D-VA) on Afghanistan.

DATELINE NBC

Friday, July 3 - The latest updates on Michael Jackson's funeral arrangements, finances, and the Neverland Ranch. Plus, more reactions from friends and fans of the King of Pop.

Sunday, July 5 - Ten near-death experiences caught on camera. The extremely close calls include a base jump gone horribly wrong, a roof top fire rescue and a girl trapped under concrete. Hoda Kotb reports.

Monday, July 6 - A popular, well-connected businessman dies when his car explodes. Initially, speculation leads to the mob, but a big insurance payoff eventually sends this cold case to Europe, where one ex-wife resides. Josh Mankiewicz reports.

Friday, July 10 - Two childhood friends from South Boston grow up and take divergent paths - John Connolly was one of Boston's most celebrated FBI agents and James "Whitey" Bulger became a notorious mobster. Connolly makes a deal with his old friend Bulger: Become an informant and the FBI agent would allow the illegal gambling operation to continue without interference from the law. But what kind of Devil's Deal had been struck and did the FBI agent also ignore more serious mob crimes? Dennis Murphy investigates the crimes and court trial that became the basis for the Martin Scorsese film "The Departed."

Monday, July 13 - A young UCLA student is found dead in a Los Angeles railroad tunnel. Was this a possible cult killing or result of witchcraft? Or were the victim's two roommates responsible for the murder? Keith Morrison reports.

Friday, July 17 - A Boston contractor's bizarre murder case has a jury deadlocked. With little concrete evidence, the court's second attempt at justice results in a trial that redefines the term "reasonable doubt." Keith Morrison reports.

Sunday, July 19 - John Larson updates the case of the disappearance of a 3-year-old girl, her father's determination to find her, and the truth that finally came out nearly forty years later.

Friday, July 24 - Josh Mankiewicz revisits case of Patty Hearst's kidnapping in 1974 by a little known group called the SLA - Symbionese Liberation Army. Mankiewicz speaks with a man also held by the SLA who's now telling his story publicly for the first time. In a case that appears to defy all possibility, an unassuming elementary school vice principal, known for his kind heart, is charged with the murders of his wife and children. Keith Morrison reports.

Sunday, July 26 - A mother is kidnapped but manages to call 911 without her captor's knowledge. Other witnesses, including a driver who saw the crime in real time, all dial 911 pleading for help. But did a breakdown in the system prevent police from finding her? Dennis Murphy reports.

Monday, July 27 - A popular, well-connected businessman dies when his car explodes. Initially, speculation leads to the mob, but a big insurance payoff eventually sends this cold case to Europe, where one ex-wife resides. Josh Mankiewicz reports.

Sunday, August 2 - HOW LUCKY CAN YOU GET? Chris Hansen follows the Security Enforcement Division of the California Lottery on a unique undercover investigation to test the compliance of the state's lottery retailers .

Friday, August 7 - A string of similar violent crimes targeting shoppers at a local mall in a wealthy neighborhood have left investigators searching for suspects. Is a killer still on the loose? Dennis Murphy reports. A Florida real estate agent disappears. Her husband claims she ran off, but friends are suspicious. A lawyer learns what may have happened to the woman, but is bound to silence by attorney-client privilege. Finally, nine years later, the lawyer is able to reveal what he knows. Will it help solve the case? Keith Morrison investigates

Sunday, August 9 - Dateline looks back 40 years at the weekend that defined a generation with "Back to Woodstock." This is the story of the most memorable concerts in rock history told through the eyes of young concert participants, event organizers behind the scenes, and the musician that rocked the crowd, including a look at rare home movies and archival footage never before aired. Ann Curry reports.

Monday, August 10 - Bud and Melanie Billings were murdered in their Pensacola home in early July. Why was this couple, the locally celebrated parents of seventeen children, thirteen of them adopted and nine with special needs, targeted? Keith Morrison investigates the many questions that remain in this strange case, including a look at the suspects and possible motives. He also talks with Ashley Markham who's telling the inspirational story of her mother Melanie Billings in-depth for the first time.

Friday, August 14 - After a young college graduate is caught with drugs a second time, police offer her a chance to clear her record by becoming a confidential informant. But when the undercover operation to bust a couple of suspected drug dealers goes bad, the 23-year-old gets killed. Now her distraught parents are pointing fingers at the police, but who is really to blame? Chris Hansen reports. More than 20 years ago, an 11-year-old boy mysteriously vanished, his body found a few weeks later. Now, the case is solved, but what took so long? Hoda Kotb talks to the boy's mother who fought a decade-long battle for justice.

Friday, September 25 - HEAR THE KING OF POP IN HIS OWN WORDS THIS FRIDAY, SEPT. 25 IN "THE MICHAEL JACKSON TAPES: A 'DATELINE' EXCLUSIVE" Meredith Vieira Interviews Rabbi Shmuley Boteach about his recordings with Jackson being made public for the first time. As investigations into the death of Michael Jackson continue to take center stage, viewers will have a rare chance to hear the King of Pop in his own words this Friday, Sept. 25 in a "Dateline" exclusive, reported by Meredith Vieira. From 1999 to 2001, Jackson was a friend of Rabbi Shmuley Boteach, and he often confided in him. And now, recordings of those conversations -- made with Jackson's permission -- will be made public for the first time. In the tapes, Jackson comes out from behind his mask to reveal a man who in spite of all his fame, success and musical talent, was desperately lonely. He dishes about celebrities like Madonna and Brooke Shields, but also talks openly about his love of children, the torment of his childhood and his deepest fears. For the one hour special, Vieira interviews Rabbi Boteach, who calls himself "America's Rabbi," about their conversations, detailed in his new book, The Michael Jackson Tapes: A Tragic Icon Reveals His Soul in Intimate Conversation. Rabbi Boteach will also appear live on "Today," Friday, Sept. 25 and Tuesday, Sept. 29.
